JGTC Coming to American Soil

- Detroit, MI

The Japanese GT Championship Series (JGTC) is the premier racing series of Japan and the most exciting GT racing series in the world. It is to Japanese fans what NASCAR is to American racing fans, but thanks to massive media exposure and coverage on the Speed Channel, it has gained a huge fan base of its own right here in North America.

Racing enthusiasts get ready! On December 18-19, 2004, the JGTC, in conjunction with the Sports Car Club of America (SCCA) is coming to America. As an early Christmas present for enthusiasts, the California Speedway will host GT Live, an all-encompassing sport compact-themed motorsports event featuring 25 teams from the JGTC Series. GT Live will become the first-ever event in North America to feature a JGTC race on American soil.

"The SCCA loves this kind of racing, so we would welcome them to America with open arms," said SCCA chairman Steve Johnson. Series participants Honda, Nissan and Toyota each has its North American HQ in nearby Los Angeles.
